St. Paul's Anglican Church and History House

McLennan

McLennan

The Anglican Church and rectory has been a part of McLennan for over 80 years. The rectory basement flooded in 1997. It required a lot of repairs and it was questionable whether it was a safe place to live, the rectory was slated to be demolished.

Sentiment for this old house was sparked with its proposed demise. This is where we went to Sunday School, met to do projects, learned about being a part of the community. We felt we would like this vital piece of our history to live on. Thus the idea of an Anglican Heritage House came to shape.

Our project began in 1998.

We have received a lot of support from the Town of McLennan and the Royal Canadian Legion for the use of their hall for our summer long fund raising garage sales. We have received grants from the Local Lottery Board, the Community Enhancement Board and the Historical Resources Foundation.

Our project received help from many volunteers; the most giving of their time and effort were John Sobolewski, Dennis Laliberte and Fred Schellinberger.

In 2006, our project received Municipal Historical Site recognition.

We hope that these structures will be an appreciated part of our community for many years to come.
